PrivacyQ: Must one minimize or maximize $\int e^{t^2} dt$ or $\int e^{-(t-1)^2} dt$? So I asked myself if one can minimize/maximize this integral: $\int_{-\infty}^{\infty} e^{t^2} dt$ or if we have to transform it to: $\int_{-\infty}^{\infty} e^{-(t-1)^2} dt$ I came up with the idea that I have to make it integral from $-\infty$ to ∞ and from ∞ to $-\infty$, but the argument didn't work out. Also I have never seen this method in any book, paper or answer to a question. I know that it is the same but just do not see why it is so. In case it helps: I had a strange question in mind about this topic:

Question: Let $\phi \in C^1(\mathbb{R})$ satisfy $\phi(x) = \phi(-x)$ and $\phi'(x) \geq 0$ for all $x \in \mathbb{R}$

info@nmprc.com.au.Q: Proof of $\left| \int_0^\infty e^{-i\alpha t} \sin(\alpha x) \, dt \right| \leq \frac{1}{2}$ I am a little confused with the following proof : From the Cauchy-Schwarz inequality we get $$\left| \int_0^\infty e^{-i\alpha t} \sin(\alpha x) \, dt \right| \leq \frac{\sqrt{\int_0^\infty e^{-2i\alpha t} \, dt} \sqrt{\int_0^\infty \sin^2(\alpha x) \, dt}}{2} = \frac{1}{2}.$$
 Why did the author divide the integral by 2 ? Thank you in advance. A: I assume you meant that you are integrating from 0 to ∞ and not just from 0 to 1 . If so, then the first integral in the numerator is bounded by a constant times $1/2$ due to the symmetry of the integrand and the fact that the integrand is real. (The constant is the square root of the area under the graph of e^{-2it}). The second integral is $\leq 1/2$ because $\sin^2 x \leq 1$. Raphael 'Kikutaro' Aida is the biggest name in the death
