Shri Muhurta 1.3 Portable - Astrology Software

(a) Field of the Invention The invention relates to a treatment for injured tissue, in particular to a treatment for injured tissue that relieves pain and promotes healing by inducing the release of endogenous opioids from the plantar nerves of the patient's foot. (b) Description of Prior Art The use of saltwater burns and blisters have been known for many years. These types of injuries are associated with pain, and they require immediate medical attention. The use of ointments, bandages, and heating devices are generally used to promote healing and reduce inflammation. It is known to relieve pain by using opioids, such as acetylcodeine and morphine. Opioids relieve pain by virtue of their binding to specific receptors on the terminals of nerves that transmit pain impulses to the brain. Acetylcodeine and morphine bind to the central nervous system's opioid receptors, where they act as powerful inhibitors of the transmission of pain impulses. Unfortunately, these opioids are addictive and can lead to respiratory depression, nausea, and vomiting. It is known that healing takes place by a combination of intrinsic and extrinsic factors. The intrinsic factors include a vascularized bed and vascularized nerve fibers, with blood and nerve endings supplying each part of the repair site. One important extrinsic factor is the presence of cells that secrete the protein collagen, which provides the anatomic and mechanical framework for the repair. The injuries that are associated with pain can be numerous and include traumatic injuries, such as sprains, strains, contusions, and lacerations; surgical injuries, such as cuts and incisions; injuries that are inflicted from external pressures, such as burns, frostbite, frostnip, electrical injuries, and chemical burns; and chronic injuries, such as arthritic swellings. Burns can occur when the natural fats or oils of the tissue can be melted, or burned, by the heat of the injury. Blisters can occur when the barrier between the skin and the surrounding fluid is ruptured. In certain cases, the skin can be overstimulated, which can promote the formation of blisters. Pain can be caused by a number of factors. After the initial pain, the body becomes acidic due to increased levels of lactic acid and other waste products, which can cause lesions to develop. When the skin produces less sweat, the levels of lactic acid are increased and the skin becomes more acidic. It is an object of the invention to provide a treatment for injured tissue that can be easily 3e33713323
