Saint Adrian Saint Adrian was the third-to-last Archbishop of Ravenna, the ecclesiastical capital of the Exarchate of Italy in the Byzantine Empire. According to tradition, he was the son of a Galerian of whom there are very few authentic details. Adrian entered the Byzantine service at the age of 22 and in 687 was nominated to the see of Ravenna. He had not been ordained as a priest, when the Emperor Sergius and a few other bishops arrived at his city to claim the duties of the Exarchate from the Patriarch Paulinus. Paulinus died on the way and the bishops continued towards the Byzantine capital. Adrian still had in his possession the pallium and the insignia of the Archbishopric of Ravenna. The new Patriarch, Germanus, appointed him Bishop of Lugo and consecrated him at Naples, where the ceremony took place with the participation of three bishops. After the death of Germanus, Adrian was consecrated by the new Patriarch Paul I as bishop of Ruspoli in the place of Germanus. Later, he went to Constantinople in the person of Germanus, where Paul I appointed him to the see of Ravenna as successor to Germanus. There is no tradition as to the year of his death. Q: Adding a new polygon to QGIS and remembering the "fill" of the previous? I have a shapefile where I am looking to add a number of polygons (based on a tiff) to each of the columns, looping over a number of files. I want the new polygon to have a "fill" with the properties of the row/column of the row/column from which it is copied (we're dealing with a wide variety of rasters). Is there a way to loop through the columns and add a new polygon to each one? I'm having trouble remembering what the "last polygon" is so that I can
