27 Comments ClipNote is also a decent app. I recommend that you should try it. Just download it from the developers' site and then install it. I wish you good luck. kasper.carstensNovember 24, 2015 / 8:55 pm I love how Clipboard monitor gives you the option to make a handwritten note. So versatile. It is also a good idea to mention that there are other software that have their own way of monitoring the clipboard. The one I'm mentioning is called Clipboard

Explorer and it is freeware, and it can save and edit any content on the clipboard to your choice, and it gives you the chance to monitor the clipboard and to modify text before you paste it. In addition, it works in the same way as Clipboard monitor does. You can download this software from here: Clipboard Explorer is a free software, and works in the same way as Clipboard monitor. In addition, it's a very handy and useful application. Its features are:

The Windows clipboard is a feature without which computer use becomes pretty complicated. It can only store one item though, but this can be changed by installing one of many dedicated applications. For instance, ClipHint not only lets you keep a record of copied items, but also modify text before pasting it. Can be used on the go On the one hand, the application doesn't take any of your time, or effort to take you through a setup process, and is good to go as soon as you download it. Apart from comfort, flexibility is another perk, since you can carry it on a USB flash drive to use it on other computers besides your own, with no worries about affecting stability on the target system. The application starts to monitor your clipboard from the start, already grabbing anything inside, given it's text. You need to keep the main window up at all times, and it would have used an option to minimize to the tray area. Modify text before pasting it Split into two panels, one of them shows the current item you wish to edit, while the second is the history tracker. You're free to modify any entry as you see fit, including text customization options like font style, type, size, attributes, and color, but with no preview included for other properties than plain formatting. Any entry you select from history automatically gets sent to the clipboard to easily paste where needed. Moreover, the list can be manipulated to your advantage through options to merge at least two entries, slit one containing multiple lines, and even set markers to instantly come back to a specific item. To sum it up On an ending note, ClipHint provides the options, and necessary tools to further edit, or clean text before pasting it in the required document. Although you need to keep it on the desktop most of the times, it's window is compact, and can be easily managed by individuals of all levels of experience. Buy nowTwo former Naperville police officers who were caught on camera kicking and Tasing a handcuffed man lying in a hospital bed were fired Tuesday by the Naperville Police Department. The officers, Mike Douglas and Patrick Faulkner, were fired Monday and escorted off the police department property, according to a statement from the city manager. An attorney for the officers, Jim McKay, said Tuesday evening that the officers had not been charged with anything by the police and had not been terminated. He said that the officers were
