Jul 12, 2011 Yesterday in this space, I mentioned that the documentary Cracow Jazzarama was now available on DVD. The documentary is now available for purchase from the German company NEON Records. They made their own DVD according to the highest quality. Quality is probably why it costs €12.90. I'd go to the original Jazzarama for a couple of drinks, that would probably be around €6. My bad. The documentary is also available in English and some German. Also they have the complete game, which is nice. The game is made by TH3. I don't know who he

Since the end of the Great Recession, the number of people in prison or jail has fallen about 750,000 from a peak of more than 6.5 million, according to government statistics. But that decline has not translated into any improvement in the unemployment rate for black men. In fact, the unemployment rate for black men ages 20 to 59 stands at 9.3 percent, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics data, up from 7.7 percent at the start of 2013 and up from 9.0 percent in June 2013. The high rate among black men has persisted despite a slow but steady decline in the unemployment rate for the overall workforce since the recession ended. Unemployment for black men has fallen steadily since peaking at 17.6 percent in 2009. The rate of joblessness was at 10.5 percent in 2009, the most recent year for which data are available, according to the BLS. “Black unemployment continues to rise as the black incarceration rate continues to fall,” said Donald Grimes, an economist at the Sentencing Project, a nonpartisan organization that focuses on criminal justice issues. “I don’t think anybody should be surprised.” But many economists say unemployment among the formerly incarcerated is likely due to the lack of education and skills that result from being imprisoned and the difficulty of integrating into the workforce. The percent of black men ages 25 to 54 who are employed has declined from 38.3 percent in 2007 to 36.4 percent in April 2014. Yet the rate of unemployment among black men ages 20 to 24 has gone up from about 27 percent in 2007 to 30 percent in 2014, according to 1cb139a0ed
