Q: Create a functional interface with EclipseLink JPA I would like to ask if it's possible to create a Java 8 functional interface with EclipseLink JPA? I have searched on the web and could find only one solution. However, I could not find a way to implement this solution. So, if I have a function: `public void print() { // print something }` and I could create functional interface: `@FunctionalInterface public interface IFetchable { @SuppressWarnings("unchecked") void doSomething(); }` Then I could add the function in the Entity. `@Entity public class Entity{ @OneToOne(optional=false) @JoinColumn(name="OTHER_COLUMN") private IFetchable get; public IFetchable get() { return get; } public void setGet(IFetchable get) { this.get = get; } public void doSomething() { if (get() != null) { get().doSomething(); } } }` The thing is that EclipseLink JPA does not support this kind of solution. As I found out if I want to use it I need to create a class like: `@Entity public class Entity{ @OneToOne(optional=false) @JoinColumn(name="OTHER_COLUMN") private IFetchable get; public IFetchable get() { return get; } public void setGet(IFetchable get) { this.get = get; } }` I would like to know if there's a way to create functional interfaces or something like that. A: This will work in MySQL. `@Entity public class Entity{ @OneToOne(optional=false`
