Right wing provocateur, Ann Coulter railed about the Senate's immigration bill, tweeting on Tuesday that Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Chuck Grassley was the last person the bill should be sent to. "So now the Senate is poised to vote on its immigration bill—" the essay-writer for the conservative publication, National Review Online, began, before seeing the doom of the bill. Faux "Irish Catholic conservative," Grassley "will forever be remembered as the last GOP senator to switch parties to vote for" mass immigration, she raged. "It's true. He voted for the 'comprehensive' immigration reform bill that came before the Senate in 2013," Coulter wrote. She said of the 2013 bill, "It gave citizenship to 12 million more legal aliens, on top of 11 million illegal aliens already here." Coulter then took aim at the Gang of Eight senators, who are working on another version of the bill, tweeting, "The bill calls for 12 MILLION MORE law-breaking criminals to be given citizenship!" I stand corrected for the record, Mr. Grassley, you did vote for the 2013 amnesty bill. #Amnesty. "You, Mr. President, are the perfect person to sign an immigration bill that gives citizenship to 12 million more illegal aliens—and even if you didn't, you should be impeached anyway for wrecking our economy," Coulter said. The 2013 bill would have given amnesty to over 13 million illegal aliens, including a doubling of the country's legal immigration levels. It would have also given citizenship to the 12 million illegals the bill would have brought into the United States. "... even if you didn't, you should be impeached anyway for wrecking our economy," Coulter said of President Trump. Sen. Grassley slammed Coulter after she tweeted on Tuesday about his support for the 2013 amnesty bill. "Your hatred of Trump and love for open borders is sickening. I know you can't believe anything you read anymore, but we are fighting for the border, and I will do everything in my power to stop this travesty," Grassley wrote. Shaking her finger at the Iowa Republican, Coulter responded, "I hate Donald Trump with a passion," while adding, ♦
