The key to this question is just this one line. Is it possible? How do I do it? I want to place the image right over the top of the background image in the pdf. Is that possible? A: Yes! You can place any shape or path or image or the like on the background layer, if you follow these steps: First, hit Command-N to create a new layer, and when the menu appears, choose "New Layer" and choose a location and name for the new layer. Once you've done that, go up to the top of the Layers panel and click the little "eye" icon next to the layer name to show/hide that layer. Next go to the top of the Layers panel and choose "Selection", there's a few choices under that, but they all do the same thing. For your particular case, you want to choose "Place". To add an image, go to File > Place, and select the image you want, and it'll appear over the background as soon as you've placed the layer. You can use an object like a circle or oval for the background, too, because it all gets flattened and placed on top of each other, it doesn't matter. A: Yes, you can do this, it's as simple as clicking the "layer thumbnail" icon (top right corner) which will expand the Layer Panel to show all the layers on that document. First create a new layer by using the "New Layer" command on the menu (Command-N, "New Layer"). This will create a new, empty layer on the document. Open the Layers panel and choose "Place" from the action menu on the main toolbar. Select the layer containing the image which is on the background layer. You can use the "Arrow" tool with the "Object" tool mode on to select the image from the Tasks panel. To do this you must expand the Layers panel with the "layer thumbnail" icon.
