KeyMapper has the ability to configure every key and key combination through simple keysets. KEYMACRO supports multiple users. Users can be either local or remote. A password is needed for remote users to login to KEYMACRO. You can use your own login information or a dynamic login. A user session is kept alive when a remote user is logged in, even when the user's computer is turned off. KeyMapper supports Linux, Windows, Macintosh, Solaris, AIX, HP-UX, BSD, etc. Platforms support can be extended by third parties. KeyMapper has the ability to provide a login screen when a remote user is logging in. The login screen can also be customized. KeyMapper has the ability to control the appearance of the keysets. The keyset can be custom colored or even replaced with other keys. The back-color and foreground color can be changed for key numbers. Custom keys are saved in an external text file and can be changed with the "Edit keyset" button. KeyMapper has the ability to control mouse buttons. You can assign either left, right, middle or none to any key. The position can be reassigned to any key. When not in use, the mouse buttons can be hidden and even unassigned to specific keysets.

AllMyNotes Organizer is a tool that can help you store all information in a simple manner. The application comes with a clean interface and an intuitive layout that takes little time to get used to. All entries can be stored under various folders, in a tree structure that can easily be customized. Everything is kept organized by theme or any other criteria you want. Items can be moved from one folder to another with great ease, since AllMyNotes Organizer supports the “drag and drop” function. You can also view your notes and folders with thumbnail pictures. Single files are displayed with the name, content preview and file size, while subfolders are displayed with name, number of notes and folders contained and overall size. The app comes with a text editor that permits extensive text customizing. Thus, you can choose the font type and size, emphasize (bold, italic and underline), text and background color or alignment. Additionally, you can choose to create bullet or numbered lists, add tables, pictures, files or time stamps. The program also sports a spellchecker and enables you to search for certain keywords in all the notes you created. You can also create alarms. You must input the time and date and choose the frequency of occurrence (single, daily, weekly, monthly or yearly). Default text editor options can be assigned from the program’s “Settings”. Furthermore, you can set the tool to auto-save your work every few minutes, have it run at system startup and create a backup to your files. All in all, AllMyNotes Organizer is a great tool that can help you keep all your notes in one place. The app is easy to use, so inexperienced users shouldn’t have difficulties working with it.
