Weather Buddy Description: Rainmeter is the world's first open source rainmeter application that allows you to create your own application skins. While it's true you can use rainmeter to display temperature, Humidity, rainfall, solar radiation, and wind speed - this is a low priority. We are focusing on "Rainmeter is NOT a weather application (yet)." Rainmeter is a true world's first open source rainmeter application. A true world's first - the use of Rainmeter by users is growing by the day. Not cool. Not to be prissy. Just because it's a cool idea, doesn't mean anyone should steal it. "Weather Buddy is a very small software application that monitors the weather in any major U.S. city and displays the current temperature in the system tray of your desktop. This software can not be used to request a weather forecast, nor can it be used to view weather from a URL. Metropolis Weather Monitor writes an XML weather forecast document to the computer's desktop. You can customize the name and location of the forecast file, and you can use or not use the weather icons in the forecast desktop document. For example, the document looks like this: Metropolis Weather Metropolis, IN, USA 20030504T153919 20030504 62 10 0 0 N/A 1 30 Metropolis Weather Monitor's installation package contains a default forecast file: MetropolisWeather.xml. Metropolis Weather Monitor is distributed as freeware.
