Pathologic effects of paclitaxel and fosaprepitant in a canine model of peritoneal mesothelioma. Peritoneal mesothelioma is an uncommon and poorly understood neoplasm that typically occurs after exposure to asbestos. The objective of this study was to define the safety and tolerability of paclitaxel and the clinically relevant neurokinin-1 receptor antagonist fosaprepitant in a canine model of peritoneal mesothelioma. Ten beagle dogs received intraperitoneal paclitaxel and intravenous fosaprepitant to evaluate the effect on peritoneal mesothelioma, as measured by body weight, abdominal circumference, and ascites score; blood analysis, serum chemistry, and coagulation studies; and thoracic radiography. The animals also received 20 mg/m(2) paclitaxel and 250 mg/m(2) fosaprepitant intravenously as part of another study. Blood and thoracic radiographs were obtained after the second dose of paclitaxel and fosaprepitant, respectively. The animals tolerated paclitaxel and fosaprepitant well. Abdominal circumference was significantly decreased 24 hours after the first dose of paclitaxel and fosaprepitant, and ascites was significantly decreased at 12 and 24 hours after paclitaxel and fosaprepitant administration. There were no significant differences in blood chemistry or coagulation. Paclitaxel and fosaprepitant are well tolerated and potentially useful adjuncts in the management of peritoneal mesothelioma.Horodna Górna County __NOTOC__ Horodna Górna County () is a unit of territorial administration and local government (powiat) in Silesian Voivodeship, southern Poland.
