Pyrroloquinoline quinone is a potent inhibitor of cyclic-AMP dependent protein kinase, phosphodiesterase I, and ribosyl-protein synthetase. The active constituents of extracts of some methylene blue-containing bacteria and lichen, pyrroloquinoline quinone (PQQ) and L-cysteine, were isolated and tested as activators of cyclic-AMP dependent protein kinase. PQQ was found to have a high apparent affinity for the catalytic unit (C) of this enzyme, (Ki = 0.2 microM); it is the first metabolite of PQQ recognized as a specific activator of a regulatory subunit (R) of the mammalian enzyme and only compound so far identified as a potent inhibitor of cyclic-AMP dependent protein kinase. It is also a potent inhibitor of cyclic-GMP dependent protein kinase (Ki = 0.7 microM), cyclic-GMP phosphodiesterase I (Ki = 2.2 microM), and rat liver ribosyl-protein synthetase (Ki = 1.6 microM), exhibiting a potency comparable to the bis-(5-benzyl-imidazole)pyrroloquinoline quinone (FK506) in the inhibitions of these enzyme activities. PQQ also reversibly inactivates cyclic-GMP dependent kinase R1 (Ki = 0.3 microM), cyclic-AMP-dependent protein kinase, cyclic-GMP phosphodiesterase I, and ribosyl-protein synthetase. The half-life of PQQ at pH 7.2 is approximately 22 h. The enzyme-inhibitor complex is rapidly dissociated by addition of cyclic nucleotides. The fluorescence of the complex increases with increasing concentrations of PQQ.Ok, I know you're not supposed to put movie clips on a sign but in the previous posts on this topic, I don't think we've covered all the rules? I thought I would put this one together: Never put movie clips on signs. Even if you find them on the floor somewhere. Even if they're super cheap. Always purchase your movie clips. They're way better than what you can get for free, and you can always sell them when you no longer need them. Even if the movie clips are only $1.
