"When it comes to creating a new FIFA, every element and decision is meticulously researched, considered and resolved," Peter Hällström, FIFA's Director of Game Development, said in a press release. "The addition of the 'HyperMotion Technology' in FIFA 22 brings new depth to the football simulation and is a significant step forward in the development of the video game." It was announced at the launch of the game that FIFA 22 will be available on both PlayStation 4 and Xbox One, meaning fans will be able to play it on both the same disc. What's more, FIFA will allow the same leagues, leagues, stadiums, and player content to be used on PlayStation 4 and Xbox One. The game will be the first FIFA to use a motion capture suit to input the movements of the players and translate them to the game. Previous games in the FIFA series have been played using controllers or the gamepad and the ball. FIFA 22 arrives on May 29 for PS4 and Xbox One. For more details, visit the official FIFA website.
