Q: Update value in SQL Server 2008 from PHP code I'm trying to update a value in SQL Server 2008 from PHP code. The SQL Server is running on a remote server but I'm able to login to it via PHP Here is the code: $sql = "UPDATE [DB1].[dbo].[TestTable] SET [Field1] = $myValue"; echo $sql; $stmt = sqlsrv_query($conn, $sql); if ($stmt === false) { die(print_r(sqlsrv_errors(), true)); } The field has a value of 2 in the database, so the value should be updated to 3. Instead, the value stays the same. I'm using php 5.3.14 and the server is running win2008. Could anyone help me? A: It looks like you need to add a query inside your statement: $sql = "UPDATE [DB1].[dbo].[TestTable] SET [Field1] = {$myValue}"; Q: BarChart - how to set the values on the right side of the x-axis? I have a data file in which each line has the datetime, the windspeed and the airpressure. I have a problem in a BarChart, where the x-axis and y-axis have been created. The problem is the x-axis, where the values are displayed, but in the reversed order, the data being displayed as follows: 2015-10-25T14:20:00.000+02:00 -9.4 The values -9.4 and 14:20:00.000 are part of [Comparative studies on the saliva of patients infected with human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) treated with azidothymidine (AZT) and interferon alfa]. The analysis of salivary gland secretion was carried out in 39 patients with HIV infection in the course of a combined treatment (azidothymidine plus interferon alfa) and in 37 patients during interferon alfa therapy. The results showed significant differences (t-test, p Speckle imaging lidar and its application in satellite remote sensing. We investigate the performance of a speckle imaging lidar operating in the backscatter or the transmission mode. In the backscatter mode the laser illumination is used to produce an image of the target, whereas in the transmission mode the transmitted laser light is used to generate an image of the target. In each mode the laser illumination is used to generate a 3D spatiotemporal map of the backscattered energy. An example of a recorded 3D speckle image is shown. In the transmission mode the recorded image indicates not only the 3D shape of the target, but also the 3D spatial distribution of backscatter processes. This capability of speckle imaging lidar is then applied to the study of aerosols over a desert area of the California desert near Bakersfield. A 3D volume of the aerosol layer obtained from the measured backscatter image is presented and analyzed.Optimal Electrocardiogram Lead Selection for Threshold Level Evaluation in the Diagnosis of Atrial Fibrillation. T-wave alternans (TWA) monitoring has been incorporated as a method to detect early stages of atrial fibrillation (AF). This study aimed to identify the optimal TWA lead for AF detection. We analyzed data from the A-WIND Trial involving 42 subjects with sinus rhythm (SR) and 30 AF subjects. Atrial fibrillation detection was assessed using the surface electrocardiogram (ECG) using four different lead (leads) of the signal-averaged ECG (SAECG). The magnitude of TWA (mTWA), beat-to-beat TWA (bTWA) and instability index (mSI) were determined using these leads. mTWA, bTWA and mSI
