Layers and Transparency This is a screenshot of a layer from an image that has been filled with red over a green background layer. (Click image to see more details.) In Photoshop, digital images are comprised of layers. Each layer contains its own image, text, pattern, or anything else that you want to add. You can create a new layer, or re-use an existing one by using the Layer> New Layer command. This opens a new empty layer. You can name the layer, and change the layer's properties, such as its opacity. To duplicate an existing layer, use the Layer> Layer> Duplicate Layer command. If you later decide to change the layer's opacity, you will need to change the layer's properties. To do this, click the layer's layer thumbnail at the bottom left. Also under Layer are the Layers panel, which displays all the layers in the image; the Masking panel, which enables you to create a mask (or border) around your image; and the Properties panel, which displays information about the current layer. To edit a layer's properties, click a layer in the Layers panel to open its properties. The Properties panel contains the following properties: Layer is a general layer property. Layer Opacity is the opacity of the layer. Layers can appear more or less opaque than the background image. You can use the Opacity slider to change the opacity of the layer, and the Effects tab controls all layers that you've created. Layers with an opacity less than 1 are less opaque than other layers. Layer Opacity doesn't affect how an image is displayed in the Layers panel. It only affects how the layer is seen in relation to the background layer. If you've stacked more than one image with multiple layer, the opacity of the layer(s) are the same as the opacity of the background layer. Layer Position is where the layer appears on the image. When you change the Layer Position, it moves the layer up, down, left, or right in relation to other layers. Note: With the standard interface, you can use Shift+click to move a layer, or Shift+Drag to move a layer. To make the layer appear on top of the image, position the layer to the bottom of the layer stack. To make the layer appear above the background layer, move the layer to the top

Q: ValueError: too many values to unpack (expected 2) i want to know why this error keep happening and how to fix it. can anyone help me please i want to declare my textboxes as constants for x in range(0,len(the_list),3): for y in range(0,len(the_list[x])): if(the_list[x][y]== "1": My_txt.text = (the_list[x][y+1]+","+str(the_list[x][y+1+int(My_txt.text)])+","+the_list[x][y+2]) error message: File "", line 5, in if(the_list[x][y]== "1": ValueError: too many values to unpack (expected 2) A: Just change it to this: for x in range(0,len(the_list),3): for y in range(0,len(the_list[x])): if(the_list[x][y]== "1": My_txt.text = (the_list[x][y+1]+","+str(the_list[x][y+1+int(My_txt.text)])+","+the_list[x][y+2]) that being competitive will not be an issue for everyone. And competition is a good thing. I think a lot of the people who want to go out and learn how to program are not quite sure why they want to do so. What about getting a job? Well.. What about getting a job? My Dad is a engineer and he would, if he could, stay home to take care of me, that being said, he works long hours so this would not be possible. What about making money? You can make money with a degree in computer science, but it isn't add_session_message(OSCOM_ERROR_CONFIG, "Back to Order Backend cannot be used. Check your configuration parameters."); Selective ablation of ventricular tachycardia in humans using internal and external cardioversion. To determine the effects of internal and external cardioversion on the ablation of ventricular tachycardia (VT) during programmed ventricular stimulation (PVS), hemodynamically compromising sustained VT was induced in 21 patients (ages 12 to 67 years, mean 32 +/- 14 years) during electrophysiological study. Transvenous cardioversion (TV, n = 13), external cardioversion (EC, n = 4), or both were employed to convert the arrhythmia to a more benign form. All patients underwent six to nine PVSs. VT was induced and was hemodynamically stable at the time of cardioversion. VT was reproducibly and identically induced with PVS
