Features Like Photoshop but without the complex and confusing interface. It can import and export Photoshop PSD, PNG, GIF, JPG, SVG, and TIF files with edits made. Program Details File format(s): PNG, PSD, GIF, JPG, SVG, TIFF, JPEG, AVI, and MOV Available for Windows and macOS: Windows 7, 8, 8.1, and 10, and macOS 10.9 and above There are two versions of the software: Adobe Photoshop Elements 2019 and Adobe Photoshop Elements 2018. Both versions contain the same features. The big difference is the 2019 version features include new features, and the 2018 version features do not include the new features. The new features are listed below: Layer Comps – To see more information about a particular layer, you can switch back and forth between Photoshop and your layout. This lets you make changes more easily. Better Image Viewer – You will no longer see a black image in the preview window. The preview window now has a light background so you can see your image and it will scroll at the same time when you are working with it. Typing Improvements – You can now type directly into the image view. The functionality of Photoshop's auto-correction has been improved. Layer Merge – This feature combines multiple layers. Layer Filter – This feature lets you remove parts of an image layer. You can do this by choosing a range of colors on an image layer. Bookmark Maker – This feature can help you keep track of layers, tools, and other settings. You can now customize a folder of bookmarks. Layer Panel – This allows you to organize your layers, make adjustments, move layers, and more, all from one window. Match Point Layers – This lets you create a set of multiple layers that display the same color, shade or size as another layer. Layer Style Manager – You can now see more information about layer styles, including the images, the size, and the opacity. Transform Layer – This feature lets you edit the properties of layers with the Move tool. Improved Edit Toolbox – This feature lets you edit or create layer styles with the Layer Styles tab in the toolbar. New DNG Converter (File Converter) – This feature lets you convert images that are stored in Adobe Photoshop's proprietary.DNG format. 05a79cecff

Q: Looped via 3 levels through arrays in POST method for a data frame using Python I'm in the process of finishing up my code. I want to make the following post request via Postman. body = { "id": "5000", "operation": "add", "order": [["product1","price2"], ["product1","price2"], ["product1","price2"]] } I had managed to do the following but I wasn't sure if the looping was correct, so I added in the comment. I also don't know if the looping could be done through an array. import requests import json a = request.post("", json.dumps(body)) print(a.json()) In the print it gives me the following, showing 2 entries and in my request it gives me 0 entries. I'm not sure if this is the correct code. Can somebody help please? {"id":"5000","operation":"add","order":[[["product1","price2"],["product1","price2"],["product1","price2"]]} I also will need to loop through those and get the following data { "id": "id", "price": "price" } A: You have to create a list for each value in the order key, there is no need to create the json first, instead you can use a dict for the body: import requests body = { "id": "5000", "operation": "add", "order": [{"product": "product1", "price": "price2"}, {"product": "product1", "price": "price2"}, {"product": "product1", "price": "price2"}] } a = requests.post("'
