All the features in Photoshop are cross-platform compatible. You don't need to buy a copy of Photoshop for Windows if you have a copy for Linux or Mac. Flash for the Web Adobe Flash is used to create animation and graphics for the Web, games, and mobile apps. Flash has been used for many years in the online world. In fact, if you haven't used it, you probably have a Web site that uses Flash. The animation and graphics you see on the Web are made in Flash Professional and then exported to the Web, including Flash-based websites. Flash Professional, as with Photoshop, is available on both Mac and Windows. You need a plugin — called the Flash Player — to view Flash-based content. Flash Player runs on most computers that can run a Web browser, making it very compatible. The Flash Player is either installed already or can be downloaded easily. Adobe Flash Pro After you have downloaded Flash Player, you can create Flash content. Flash Professional contains many features, including animation, video, editing, and tweening, which allow you to place motion graphics and transitions in your Flash content. The Flash Player is installed on a computer when a Web browser requests it. The Flash Player plugin does not require installation — it runs in the background. All the features in Flash Professional are cross-platform compatible. You don't need to buy a copy of Flash Professional for Windows if you have a copy for Linux or Mac. Flash Lite for Mobile Devices Adobe Flash Lite is a software development kit that enables mobile device developers to create Flash-based content for mobiles and tablets. Similar to Flash Pro for PCs, Flash Lite can be used to create and export HTML5 content. Flash Lite content can be created using Adobe Flash Builder or Adobe Flash Pro. * * * You can find the Flash Player plugin for Firefox at ` * * * Creating Documents Sometimes people want to take a snapshot or series of snapshots of a project. Using the Document panel, it's easy to create a PDF and store that file off to the side so that it can be used at any time. Q: Can we get a setting to limit the number of chat messages for the day? There are times where I find myself checking chat every time I log in (including log out and back in) because there's a surge of messages that seems to happen every morning. I don't want to mention an exact number, but each day I seem to get at least 100 new messages. Could there be a setting to limit the number of chat messages per day? A: I have now noticed a system that counts incoming messages in the chat area and warns you if you send more than 50 messages a day, in the following way. I have no idea if this system is actually used by Stack Exchange, but I'm still wondering why it isn't mentioned in the /help/chat tag. I have also found the bot command countmsg to filter out messages: You can also filter message history to show either all messages or only messages older than a certain amount of time. For example: /countmsg will show all messages older than ago; if you specify a time greater than the last recorded message, it will include all messages in the chat. A: Thanks for the suggestions on how to flag such messages. I don't think it's a fair solution however, because it's an easy solution but also an arbitrary limit. To limit the number of messages in chat to some value, it could be done by having a small bot which counts the number of messages for that day in chat and if that's reached, it will automatically limit the maximum number of messages per day to the number it's reached. A: Just setting a chat window to autoscroll to the bottom (Ctrl+L) may solve the problem. Q: How can I have the ListView start on the button instead of the left edge of the screen? I am trying to place a list view on a form so that it becomes the top most control on the form when it expands. However, when I place it on the form, it expands the form itself as though it is a button. So, when I click the button, it works fine, and when I click the list it also works fine. However, when I have the list view on the form, when I expand it, it will "collapse" the form, and the left edge of the screen will not be the top most control, but the list view itself. How can I prevent this from happening and have the list expand the form itself? A: How about make a bottom form and make it vertical size 1px. Then you can put your ListView on top. Note that you will need to add the following: this.FormBorderStyle=FormBorderStyle.FixedDialog Q: Mongodb insert array of objects into collection I'm trying to insert an array of objects into mongo db. I've done this but it doesn't work. It returns [] after inserting data Here is my code: var ch_urls = request.body.ch_urls; var sku = []; sku.push({ ch_id: ch_urls[0].sn, size: ch_urls[0].scale, color: ch_urls[0].color, sku_id: ch_urls[0].sku_id, cost: ch_urls[0].cost, quantity: ch_urls[0].quantity, sku_name: ch_urls[0].sku_name }); //console.log(sku); collection.insert(sku, function(err, data) { //console.log(data);
