How to fix: e01e83de3750c270daa0d5f8b35455a4 A: I've had the same issue. The problem has apparently been resolved by searching for the file 'file_ns_incl.dll' and inserting it into the appropriate folder. Q: Getting "bad operand types for unary +" when converting string to int I've been trying to learn C# from reading a book, and I'm almost done, but I'm stuck on one exercise. The task is: Write an application that reads a number of coins from the user and calculates the total value. The total value can be a numerical value (just one number), a string with a number in each separated by '\ ' or a string of just letters. When the total value is a string, create a list of the individual coins. The list should be a string with each separated by '\ '. Finally print the list. Note that the coins can be up to 99 cents. I managed to make it work, but then, when I try to make it so that the user can input the coins as a string and I keep getting the error: An unhandled exception of type 'System.ArgumentOutOfRangeException' occurred inmscorlib.dll Additional information: Index was out of range. Must be non-negative and less than the size of the collection. It's the "bad operand types for unary +" if (coinsInput.Length > 0) { if (coinsInput[0] == "c") { amountInput.Text = Convert.ToDecimal(inputValue); }

Is this possible without a separate script to generate a combined js file? I've looked through several other solutions and they are either too complicated or wouldn't work. This is the best solution I have seen, which I can't make work: cat /*.js | while read file; do \ cat > $file.tmp ; \ sed '1 i\lineofcode' $file.tmp > $file ; \ mv $file.tmp $file; \ done A: The following command should work, assuming that all the js files in the directory have the same name pattern: for file in *.js do cat > $file.tmp sed '1 i\lineofcode' $file.tmp > $file mv $file.tmp $file done Nonoperative Management for Chronic Low Back Pain: A Review of Quality of Evidence and Recommendations.
