6. Once you're finished, save and close Photoshop. If you're using a Macintosh computer, you need to run and save Photoshop as an application. It's saved with the Photoshop application file name. Photoshop's original file is called something like Photoshop_2.0. If your Photoshop installation is complex, or if you're an experienced user, you should familiarize yourself with the Adobe website ('www.adobe.com'), where you can download and install the latest version of Photoshop Elements at no charge. Figure 5-1 shows an example of a Photoshop program window. Photoshop includes several other programs that come with the software, including a photo-editing program called Photoshop Elements (called simply Elements), a vector-drawing program called Illustrator, a desktop publishing program called InDesign, and several other applications that make editing images easier. Table 5-1 gives you some idea of what Photoshop programs are available with the software. If you're planning to edit images on a regular basis, buy the Photoshop Elements program ($199). It's worth the money, and you'll find it easy to use for most of your photo-editing needs. FIGURE 5-1: These two windows show an example of what a Photoshop program window looks like. TABLE 5-1: Programs in the Photoshop lineup

Adobe Photoshop is a professional graphics editor, software program used for image editing that was originally designed and developed by Silicon Graphics for the Macintosh platform, but currently runs on Windows, macOS, iOS, Android, Linux, and other operating systems. The program was released for beta testing on December 5, 1996, and was originally known as MacPhotoshop or "Mac version". Adobe has released a major update to Photoshop each year since version 10.0 on the Macintosh. It was originally written for the Macintosh OS 7 operating system, but has been also ported to Windows and the Mac OS X operating system since Adobe's acquisition of Macromedia, the company behind Macromedia Flash. The program was originally released as Photoshop 1.0 on January 19, 1990, and has had multiple update versions released since then. It is now the oldest version of Photoshop still in use by Adobe, although it is also the second most popular version. Often the name Photoshop is used to refer to Photoshop (versus the related Adobe Photoshop Elements), or to the original version. Many Adobe Photoshop products support features originally added in the Photoshop line, including Photoshop and Photoshop Elements, Paint Shop Pro (released in 1984), and Photoshop Creative Suite (released in 1999). Adobe has released a major update to Photoshop each year since version 10.0 on the Macintosh. Contents show] Features Adobe Photoshop is a raster graphics editor. It uses a pixel-based display system, and changes or manipulates image pixels. Objects can be moved, copied and rotated, but not resized. A major feature is the ability to process images as layers, allowing multiple images to be superimposed together or manipulated separately. Images can be cropped, rotated, and changed in color. Color images can be easily converted to black and white, and images can be enhanced or changed with filters. Adobe Photoshop can be used for photography and for illustration, and also has many features useful for graphic designers. Adobe Photoshop has an updated user interface, which is shown as a table with toolbars at the top of the screen. As of version 12, an undo option has been added to this interface. This new interface is much more like Photoshop CS6 than Photoshop CS2 or earlier, and has been more consistent in recent 05a79cecff

Search The last few years have seen a huge increase in the number of women in leadership positions, particularly in Fortune 500 companies. Women in leadership positions have a significantly greater chance of reaching boardroom level than their male counterparts. They are more likely to be viewed as able managers, and less likely to be seen as pushy or ambitious. Another significant change is the much smaller number of women who are CEOs in 2016, compared to the 199 women CEOs which there were in 1991. The percentage of women CEOs to men CEOs has decreased by 32% in the past 25 years. This makes women CFOs even more important. For example, after consulting firm Towers Watson analysed how 40,000 CEOs view women in leadership roles, it found that male CEOs were 23% more likely to view women as more capable than men. In contrast, a male CFO was almost 60% more likely to view a woman as more capable, compared to a male CEO. Many women CFOs have had to deal with sexist bosses in the past, and have had to build a strong, resilient nature from these experiences. Some have even called this trait "Fake it 'till you make it". The Good CFO Project is a fast-track mentoring programme for women seeking to become CFOs at early stage or growing companies. CFOs are selected after they have demonstrated a particular set of competencies that are critical to the success of early stage companies. In addition to mentoring support, women CFOs who complete

Galactose-1-phosphate uridylyltransferase from bovine liver: purification and partial characterization. In a first attempt to purify the bovine liver galactose-1-phosphate uridylyltransferase from the endoplasmic reticulum, the enzyme was solubilized with the nonionic detergent Triton X-100 and partially purified by chromatography on DEAE-cellulose and Sepharose 4B. The enzyme was characterized with regard to heat stability, optimum pH, N-terminal amino acid sequence, uridylyltransferase activity, subunit size, and N-terminal amino acid sequence. Purification was 500-fold and the molecular weight was estimated to be 120,000. The enzyme was stable up to 75 degrees C, with a half-life of 6 min at 48 degrees C. The optimum pH for uridylyltransferase activity was 7.2 and the enzyme was irreversibly inactivated by HgCl₂, FeCl₂, and FeCl₃ but not by ZnCl₂. The molecular weight of the subunits of the enzyme was estimated to be 43,000 and 42,000, and the N-terminal amino acid sequence of the subunit in the order of molecular weight was Ser-Thr-Asn-Thr-Leu-Met-Asp-Leu-Gln-Leu-Met-Gly-Gly-Gly. The sequence of the two subunits was nearly identical and the codon for Ser occurred in either the first or the last position of the 14th codon in 13 amino acid residues of the N-terminal region.
