Playing with the Dynamic Filter feature The Dynamic Filter feature (Figure 5-4) can be used to turn a monotonous layer or pattern into a work of art. In Figure 5-4a, I created a gray rectangular gradient using the Gradient Tool (g). Then I deleted a part of the Gradient in the Layers palette and created the same gradient again, but this time with a blending mode of Multiply (h). Then I changed the blending mode to Linear Dodge and used the Brush tool (b) to paint the Dynamic Filter effect over the entire layer to get the final look. Figure 5-4: Use the Dynamic Filter to add some spice to your layers.

Features of Photoshop Elements Downloads Crop Shrink Rotate Flip Modify Resize Crop and Cut Most of the images you see on social media have been edited in some way. You can remove the unwanted parts of the images or add a fun effect like a background or watermark. Photoshop Elements comes with basic editing tools that will help you achieve these tasks. The Crop tool, which is used to crop images, is a great place to start when you are trying to edit an image. Step 1: On the Edit tab, click Crop. Step 2: This will open the Crop toolbox. The Crop tool is at the top of the toolbox. It has a shape selector tool, an auto crop tool, a crop mask tool and crop options. Step 3: Click and drag the red rectangle within the bounding box to crop the image you want to edit. Click and drag the red rectangle within the bounding box to crop the image you want to edit. Step 4: Click the green arrow next to the Auto Crop tool and click OK. Step 5: This tool will automatically crop the image for you. Step 6: Click the green arrow next to the Crop Mask tool and click OK. Step 7: If you want to crop the image, you should click the crop mask. If you want to crop only the white parts of the image, you can click the crop mask. Click outside the crop mask if you want to crop the entire image. Step 8: Click the square next to the Crop Options to change the crop size. Click OK to crop the image. Step 9: Crop the image as desired. When you are finished with editing the image, you can click Edit » Crop to return to the Crop tool. Shrink You can resize images to make them fit a specific size like on a Facebook or Twitter image post. The Shrink tool is located on the Image 388ed7b0c7 cgrenier@bracepatt.com on 08/21/2000 08:42:50 AM To: cc: Subject: Turlock Letter Gavin, I was asked by Ed Duncan (a lawyer in the San Francisco office) to forward this letter for Enron that he received last week and thought you may interest. It basically states that the city could be forced to declare a recession if it fails to implement the Turlock master. I think that a quick "yes" or "no" on the master, and the question of whether you want to participate in any further refinements to the deal (they are thinking of amending the agreement if ENA participates) is what you need to discuss with Jeff. I am only representing ENA and have no ties to the D.C. or Houston development groups, nor am I a lobbyist for the project, so I am not trying to influence you one way or the other. I am not representing Jeff on this. Ed asked that I run this by you because he did not know if you were still interested in being involved in the process or not. Sincerely, Charlie Wheelchairs are commonly used for assisting a person to move around in a particular environment. A common problem associated with an assisted person using a wheelchair is an attempt by the assisted person to stand up and move away from the wheelchair. The wheelchair is typically oriented such that its front end is positioned in front of the seated person. When the seated person rises to move away from the wheelchair, the chair often must be tipped or rolled backward toward the seated person.

I am trying to make my Date field auto-populate when a user types into the date field, but I am having no luck. How can I do this? Currently, if I enter a date, the field does not populate. class Article(models.Model): title = models.CharField(max_length=200) published_date = models.DateField() def __str__(self): return self.title I would like the date to be auto-populated like this: A: You should probably use a DateField in your Article model, and in your admin class have a formfield_class option: class ArticleAdmin(admin.ModelAdmin): formfield_class = DateField If you do this, you should also, of course, put the DateField in the right model in the admin, since you don't want it in all Admin classes. The formfield_class option allows you to define your own form field class, and is used as a basis for formfield_overrides. So, if the field's in a particular ModelAdmin subclass isn't defined by DateField, you can implement your own formfield to do what you want with it. You should create a __init__ method for your custom formfield that does something like this: def __init__(self, *args, kwargs): super(DateField, self).__init__(*args, kw
