Roblox is an online game platform and game creation system developed by Roblox Corporation that allows users to program games and play games created by other users. Created by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel in 2004 and released in 2006, the platform hosts user-created games of multiple genres coded in the programming language Lua. For most of Roblox's history, it was relatively small, both as a platform and a company. Roblox began to grow rapidly in the second half of the 2010s, and this growth has been accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic. Roblox is free to play, with in-game purchases available through a virtual currency called Robux. As of August 2020, Roblox had over 164 million monthly active users, including more than half of all American children under 16. Although Roblox has received generally positive reviews from critics, it has faced criticism for its moderation, microtransactions, and exploitative practices directed toward children. Israel's enforcement of its anti-terrorist security law, which permits detentions and interrogations of individuals deemed by Israel to be a threat to national security, is without judicial review. In this article, we consider that decision-making authority as it is reflected in the relationship between Israel's Supreme Court and the Knesset - the legislative branch. Our focus is on Israel's constitutional courts, and their place as intermediary powers between the executive and the legislature. While the Supreme Court has broad constitutional review authority, its precedent-making role is circumscribed in substantive disputes over the interpretation and application of the Basic Laws. We argue that in reaching substantive decisions, Israel's constitutional courts increasingly employ an ad hoc, case-by-case approach to national security in striking contrast to

To present data on the epidemiology of obesity and overweight and to highlight the importance of parents' influence on diet and lifestyle of their children and adolescents. This was a descriptive study conducted in the city of Belo Horizonte, Minas Gerais, Brazil, in 1998. We used a validated questionnaire to assess the diet and lifestyle of 832 adolescents, aged 10 to 18 years. We also assessed the level of participation of parents in the school's activities. Adolescents' weight and height were measured, and BMI was calculated. The study showed that the most prevalent diet and lifestyle were: intake of white bread, fried food and soft drinks more than once a week, and low consumption of fruit and salads, respectively. The diet of most adolescents and their parents was classified as normal or close to normal according to the dietary recommendations. Despite a high level of physical activity, the prevalence of obesity among boys was higher than among girls (12.4% versus 6.8%, respectively; P Hanging Gardens, Afghanistan The Hanging Gardens of Afghanistan are a set of terraced hills in the Salang pass (Khordabad). They were constructed around 1500, with some reconstructions or additions made as late as the nineteenth century. A further eight terraces, the Mulangan Gardens, were added in the 1930s. A
