world your avatar (player) will appear to the left of your screen in the game world. the dark elves start at the top left of your screen and move clockwise while the greenskins are in the lower left of your screen and move counter-clockwise. you want the best class for your alliance, but all the chosen paths require higher level. their question is the following: "what does it take to get in the good alliances? how do i deal with being caught and being isolated?" one of my main goals was to write something that does not suck. if you have never played the old warhammer games, you are definitely going to love this game. the reason i enjoyed playing hroc is that i played the original warhammer games several times over and a lot of their backstory and lore is now directly reflected in the game. it is an mmo, but it's not like all the dungeons and everything in it are generic. it doesn't matter if you've already played warhammer online or only love that single-player, this game is completely different. the changes in the new game are many, because we have added the whole ragnarheim system to the game. at the same time, everything is also more streamlined and simplified. the main difference between hroc and warhammer online is the offline battles system. instead of biding your time for a global timer to reach certain levels, you can challenge anyone to a 1v1 fight in the local area. but the system is much more complex than it sounds! you'll have to plan your moves and strategy around your opponent, because just playing randomly usually won't work out.
