Donkey Kong 64 Wad

in mario & luigi: partners in time, donkey kong was a group member in the gallop dancers, who was chosen by phoebe to be her dance partner because of his strong jump-dance skills. donkey kong worked best with luigi, even regaling him with stories of his past adventures with mario and luigi. in the collector's edition, donkey kong was luigi's partner in the ludo caper. donkey kong would often act shocked or nervous whenever luigi got nervous, but this often resulted in donkey kong appearing drunk for most of the game. donkey kong had one of the earliest appearances in the history of the mario series in the game & watch version of donkey kong. a young donkey kong is seen in the introductory screen of the game. when mario pressed the screen, donkey kong would jump off his stool and swing on a beam of light. in addition, a small version of donkey kong also appeared in yoshi's island ds. donkey kong reappeared in the super nintendo/super famicom/super nes/mega drive port of donkey kong country 2: diddy's kong quest as one of diddy kong's friends; the game revolves around the kongs competing with diddy on a quest for bananas. donkey kong himself is actually identical to the new donkey kong of donkey kong country 2, despite the older one having some slight character design changes. donkey kong can be considered the most stereotypical mario character in this game, as his out-of-the-box personality is fairly bland and only notable for its zaniness. a more mild-mannered donkey kong is seen alongside his old friend diddy in the ds remake of donkey kong country 2, as his behavior in this game is nearly identical to his behavior in the snes/super nes/mega drive version. 5ec8ef588b
